Tax information

Tax Residency rules differ by country. Whether an individual is a tax resident is often (but not always) based on the amount of time a person spends in a country or the location of a person's residence or place of work. For example, in the US, tax residency can be a result of citizenship or residency.

Please answer both tax residency questionsAre you an Australian resident for tax purposes? Yes NoAre you a tax resident of another country?

No Yes ▶ Please list all relevant countries below and provide the associated Tax Identification Number (TIN) or equivalent. Please note this information is required to open your Business Savings Account.

A TIN is the number assigned by each country for the purposes of administering tax laws. This is the equivalent of a Tax File Number in Australia or a Social Security Number in the US.

Please note, if you have provided foreign identification documents for electronic verification and have indicated that you are not a foreign tax resident of another country, you may be required to provide additional documentation.
